MONKEYS BETTER OFF THAN BABIES ON EXHIBITION AT LINCOLN PARK

*Wm. H. Dunn Tells Lincoln Park Commissioners About
Monkeys and The Daily News Baby Sanitarium—Protests Against Lawson's Advertising Scheme.*

William H. Dunn, former clerk of the Superior Court, told a shocking but interesting story about Victor Lawson's Daily News' sanitarium to the Lincoln Park Board of Commissioners yesterday.

The commissioners are now considering Lawson's request to give him a site on Lincoln Park property near the lake front.

Lawson wants to use this property for another Daily News "sanitarium" for sick babies and has already begun asking for the money from contributors.

Dunn pointed out to the commissioners that they didn't have the right to give this state property to a private corporation, such as he declares the Daily News' Fund is.

Dunn made a personal investigation of the present sanitarium that

Lawson has so flagrantly advertised for several years. In place of the beautiful sunshine and cleanliness that the Daily News advertises Dunn found shadows and dirt. He explained all this in his talk.

He related how the mothers and their sick babies were exhibited on a platform in the shack which Lawson calls a sanitarium, while the visitors parade around them and look at them in the same manner they regard the monkeys a hundred yards away.

The commissioners listened aghast at his statements—all but one, Commissioner Austrian, who sneered at Dunn as he told of the public exhibition of the mothers who were too poverty-stricken to protest.

He called the sanitarium merely an advertising scheme on the part of Victor Lawson, who boasted that the
